The Miracle of Death: There Is Nothing But Life

By

Betty J. Kovacs, Ph.D.

How did your studies in mythology and symbolic language help you deal with the major events in your life? In what ways can dreams be of help to us?

What have been your experiences that led you to write this book, and did your entire family have similar types of experiences? How were you and your family changed by these experiences?

How did you know the experiences were “real”—that they were what you thought they were while you were having them?

Are these experiences rare? How many people have had these kinds of experiences? Why do some people have these experiences while others do not?

What can people learn from these kinds of non-ordinary, or extraordinary, experiences?

Is there any evidence that the gap between science and religion is being closed?

How do you share your messages both in writing, speaking and teaching?

You say that our view of death impacts every aspect of our lives. How so?

How can experiencing other dimensions of reality help people to cope with the loss of a loved one?

What does your book have to offer to people presently dealing with death?

What does your book have to offer to people not presently dealing with death?

Why do you think there is a planetary shift in consciousness taking place?

When did we develop the capacity for multidimensional consciousness?

What one thing would you most like the audience to take away with them today?

Where are your books available?
